

Indiana currently has a "no call list" law in place. I think it is the greatest law the state of Indiana has seen in many years. Prior to the law's creation I was interrupted several time an evening with sometimes as many as five calls for buying or investing in some stupid item or scheme. Evenings are precious time for my family and I. If I want to spend money on something I will go to the store or search the Interent. No one calling my home during an evening, iterrupting my precious time with family, will convince me to spend my American dollars. Please do not change our "no call List' law - I like my quiet evenings!
